Signs of mice at home? Time to hire the real pros.

It's winter, when mice look for warmth indoors. Like your house. They then urinate and defecate all over "their" nest. It's messy and nasty. Not to mention the diseases such as Salmonella and Hantavirus (which has killed a number of Eastern LIers) they can carry. If you've seen or heard signs of mice, call us now. Don't play cat and mouse with these dangerous rodents. Skip the copy-cat companies and call Twin Forks Pest Control, the thorough, thoroughly local professionals.

PAUL MCCARTNEY PERFORMING AT APOLLO IN THE HAMPTONS "A NIGHT OF LEGENDS" IN EAST HAMPTON

BY FLO ANTHONY

Following more than a year of speculation, Amagansett's Sir Paul McCartney announced on February 18 the Got Back Tour, a 13-city return to U.S. stages, kicking off April 28 with McCartney's first-ever show in Spokane, WA, and running through to June 16 in East Rutherford, NJ, where he will play MetLife Stadium for the first time since 2016. Got Back will see the 79-year-old knight's live debuts in Hollywood, FL, Knoxville, TN, and Winston-Salem, NC. Said McCartney in a press release, "I said at the end of the tour that I'd see you next time. I said I was going to get back to you. I got back!"

Tongues are wagging that Drew Barrymore of Sagaponack at front row next to Alicia Silverstone at Christian Siriano's show at New York Fashion Week on February 12. The iconic actress turned talk show host will turn 47 on February 22. In addition to hosting a birthday episode on her television program, Barrymore told E! News' Zanna Roberts Rassi that she wants to spend quality time that evening with her daughters Olive, 9, and Frankie, 7. The E.T. star told E!: "I just told the girls I just want to have dinner with them. That's all I care about. I don't care if it's on the couch watching Netflix with takeout food, or maybe we dare go to a restaurant." Barrymore revealed that she hasn't really been doing much dining out during the pandemic.

Southampton resident Brooke Shields was among the many nice people throughout the world who participated in Kindness Day Baldwin following a wrongful death on February 17, reports the Daily Mail. The actress/entrepreneur teamed up with some of her staff at Beginning Is Now — Shields' global community of women of all ages finding strength, wisdom, optimism and humor in each other — to walk through a park in Manhattan, handing out bouquets of yellow flowers to other women.

Alec Baldwin stepped out in Manhattan on February 16 with a few of his children and wife Hilaria following a wrongful death suit filed by the husband and son of Halyna Hutchins who was killed on the Rust set in October. The suit against the Amagansett homeowner and "Rust" producers, filed on February 15 in Los Angeles, claims reckless conduct and cost-cutting measures led to the death of Hutchins, noting she "would be alive and well, hugging her husband and 9-year-old son" had proper protocols been followed on set. The Hutchins family attorney claimed Baldwin is in "com-

Summer House star Spaige De Sorbo and her boyfriend, Southern Charm's Craig Conover, dropped by the ABG Gifting Suite at Sports Illustrated's annual Big Game Weekend event, The Party, in Los Angeles on February 12, ahead of Super Bowl LVI. Following the big game, De Sorbo hosted a Valentine's Day "Gift Yourself" Instagram live event on Instagram.

The fashionista's special guests included Conover, Hannah Berner and Brad Gorski. The Giggly Squad podcast co-host told OK!, "I did this for the girls," explaining, "you don't need a boyfriend on Valentine's Day to get Valentine's gifts."

Speaking of the holiday of hearts, Amagansett's Sarah Jessica Parker celebrated Valentine's Day with Tiffany & Co. by turning the Empire State Building to Tiffany Blue on February 14.

On February 12, Bridgehampton's Michael Rubin hosted his annual Fanatics Super Bowl Party at 3 Labs in Culver City, CA, reports several media outlets. In addition to the Fanatics founder and co-owner of the Philadelphia 76ers, notable attendees included Travis Scott, Kevin Hart, Russell Wilson and Ciara, Quogue resident Eli Manning, Nikki and Brie Bella, Shaquille O'Neal and Emmitt Smith.

Former East Hampton resident Martha Stewart, 80, also made it to Los Angeles for the Super Bowl where she partied with rapper Drake at the NFL Owner's Dinner after arriving in a private jet. "Met Drake!" Stewart wrote on her Instagram Story with a photo of herself and the Certified Lover Boy emcee. The rooftop shindig was held at Matsuhisa sushi restaurant in Beverly Hills and featured a live performance from Coldplay. "Everyone was trying to get a table of course @champagnepapi (Drake) had no trouble and his heavily guarded space was behind a screen in the outdoor area," Stewart wrote on social media. As previously reported, the Potluck Dinner Party star also teamed up with Snoop Dogg to host the weekend's Puppy Bowl.

Sightings...

It looks like Chris Cuomo has left the Hamptons for warmer weather. The former CNN host was spotted at The Colony Hotel in Palm Beach, FL with his wife Cristina Cuomo and their children.

Pregnant model and fashion designer Nicky Hilton Rothschild, whose parents Rick and Kathy Hilton own a home in Southampton, was at the Markarian fashion show at the Prince George Ballroom in Manhattan on February 14.

East Hampton Manslaughter Suspect Free on Bail

BY TIMOTHY BOLGER

The suspect accused of killing his boss in East Hampton earlier this month was released February 18 on $150,000 cash bail after a Suffolk County judge lowered the amount required.

When a grand jury indicted Marc Dern on a charge of first-degree manslaughter, he pleaded not guilty before Judge John B. Collins, who lowered the suspect's bail amount. The 34-year-old man posted bail and was released from Suffolk jail in Riverhead later the same day, according to the county sheriff's office.

Prosecutors said Dern, an assistant caddy at the tony Maidstone Golf Club, killed 45-year-old Kevin Somers, the club's caddy master, when Dern allegedly put Somers in a headlock during a fight at Dern's home on February 5. A Southampton Town Court justice initially set Dern's bail at $500,000 cash, $1 million bond, or $2 million partially secured bond after an East Hampton Town Court justice re-cused himself.

Dern is due back in Suffolk court on April 14. He faces up to 25 years in prison, if convicted.

Sean Ludwick Out of Prison 4 Years After Fatal DWI Crash Sentencing

BY TAYLOR K. VECSEY

Sean Ludwick, once a prominent New York City real estate developer, was released from New York State prison last month, a little more than four years after he was sentenced for the drunken-driving crash that killed his passenger, Sag Harbor real estate agent Paul Hansen.

The now 49-year-old had been denied parole three times since he was sentenced to three to nine years, most recently in September of 2021, but Ludwick became a free man anyway on January 12, 2022. The State Department of Corrections told Behind The Hedges that inmate number 17A4448 had to be released from custody by law due to the five years in total he served — he was behind bars since February 2016 when his $1 million bond was revoked after he reportedly planned to become a fugitive.

"The release of the person who took the life of the father of my two boys has our entire family extremely upset," Catherine Hansen said in a statement to Behind The Hedges. "We are disappointed in what we believed to be a light sentence coupled with a release from prison before completing the sentence."

Ludwick will be on parole for another three years, until January 12, 2025.

Hansen was killed when Ludwick lost control of his Porsche and struck a utility pole on Rolling Hills Court East in Noyac on August 30, 2015, at about 2 a.m. They were just 100 feet from Hansen's home, where both men's young sons slept; Ludwick's son was there for a sleepover.

Prosecutors alleged in court that Ludwick dragged Hansen's lifeless body from the badly damaged car before driving away. His mangled sports car stalled and police, responding to a neighbor's 911 call, found him more than one block away on Woodvale Street.

Hansen, who worked at Douglas Elliman Real Estate's Sag Harbor office and was also a builder in his hometown, was 53 years old. His children were just 11 and 13.

When Ludwick's blood was drawn four hours after the crash, it showed his level of intoxication was more than twice the legal limit with a reading of .18 of 1 percent.

Free on a $1 million bond and facing 32 years in prison on a 13-count indictment, he allegedly tried to flee to South America. Officials arrested Ludwick after he went to Puerto Rico, took sailing lessons, tried to buy a large boat in cash, and scoured the internet to find out which countries don't have extradition treaties with the United States. A judge revoked his bail in February 2016 and he had been behind bars ever since.

The following year, in August of 2017, he pleaded guilty to aggravated vehicular homicide and leaving the scene of an accident with a death, as well as aggravated driving while intoxicated. In October, he received the three- to nine-year sentence for the top charge, one to three years for leaving the crash scene and one year for aggravated driving while intoxicated, all of which were to run concurrently.

Ludwick made three appearances before the parole board, first in September 2018, then in March 2020, and again last September. In the parole board's decision following his first attempt, his "lack of empathy and shallow remorse" was noted. He did not fare any better in the two subsequent parole hearings.

After serving time in the Downstate, Gowanda and Otisville correctional facilities, he was released from the latter, a medium-security prison in Orange County, NY. The Corrections Department says his parole will be supervised in Suffolk County, where records show he still owns a home in Bridgehampton.

Upon getting the news of Ludwick's release, Hansen's widow and the mother of his sons, Catherine Hansen, posted a message on Facebook asking that people in the Sag Harbor area not work for Ludwick, as he was moving back to the area. "All the plumbers, electricians, builders, landscapers, delivery people, house cleaners, business owners etc. servicing the Sag Harbor area Please do not work for Sean Ludwick," she wrote adding that he "fled like a coward" and left her husband "to die 100 feet from our home."

His 5,884-square-foot home is a three-minute drive from Hansen's family home and the crash site.

Susan Hansen Morrissey, the victim's twin sister, told Ludwick at sentencing that when he got out he should choose to live elsewhere, according to 27East.

Ludwick was worth a reported $20 million when he entered prison. A graduate of the Wharton School of Pennsylvania, in 2007 he founded BlackHouse Development, which specialized in luxury condos and hotels, such as the 56-room Hotel Americano overlooking the High Line in New York City.

But, in the years leading up to the fatal crash, Ludwick seemed to be on a downward spiral. He had a growing rap sheet, ranging from an assault and battery involving a girlfriend on Martha's Vineyard to charges he broke into the Tribeca apartment of a former mistress and drew penises on artwork he had made for her.

Hansen's widow filed a wrongful death suit against Ludwick in October 2015. The case was settled out of court in 2018.

Records show that on September 9, 2015, just 10 days after the crash, his Brick Kiln Road property, as well as his townhouse on Sutton Place, were put into the names of limited liability corporations. His wife, Pamela Harrison Ludwick, sold the Sutton Place townhouse for $5.6 million in August 2021, records show.

Conditions of his release include being prohibited to leave the state without permission from his parole officer.

Ludwick could not be reached for comment.

East Hampton Airport Conversion Plan Postponed to May

BY TIMOTHY BOLGER

Town of East Hampton officials postponed temporarily closing East Hampton Airport to reopen it as a private facility after meeting with the Federal Aviation Administration and three lawsuits were filed to block the move.

The town board voted February 17 to delay by two months the airport's transition, bumping the closure from February 28 to May 17, and shortened the closure from four days to less than two, with it scheduled to reopen at 9 a.m. May 19. Town officials did not say if the lawsuits factored into rerouting the plan, but the board did appear to address some environmental issues raised in court filings. The town did, however, appear to have cleared the air with the FAA, which had warned two weeks ago that the town's prior plan could take up to two years.

"The town and the FAA discussed a new timeline, which is acceptable to both parties, for the closure of the public-use airport and the opening of the private-use airport," East Hampton Town Supervisor Peter Van Scoyoc said while reading text of the resolution after the board met in executive session to discuss airport matters and accept advice of counsel. The timeline includes "phasing in the services desired by the town, including tower operation and instrument approach procedures for airport users."

The town board had unanimously approved on January 20 the measure to convert the airport to private use using what's known as a prior permission required framework, meaning the town could enact flight curfews and limit or ban certain types of aircraft such as jets or helicopters. Van Scoyoc had said the move was aimed at addressing neighbors' noise complaints and environmentalists' pollution concerns, but business leaders have warned that closure could negatively impact the local economy.

The FAA had warned the town that the initial timeline may not give the agency enough time to approve the air traffic control tower, among other guidance systems, to be used at the airport following its conversion. Asked to verify Van Scoyoc's assertion that the delay gives the FAA the time it needs, the agency said in a statement that it "is working closely with the Town of East Hampton so all federal regulations are followed to ensure the safety of the airspace. We are committed to working collaboratively to complete this." The agency will still need to complete an aeronautical study, but the town indicated that the revised timeline syncs up with the FAA's in doing so.

Erin King-Sweeney, an aviation attorney who is executive director of the pro-airport East Hampton Community Alliance, welcomed the delay.

"East Hampton Community Alliance applauds the decision of the town board to delay the closure of HTO," she said, referring to the airport by its code. "We remain hopeful that productive discussions with the town and airport users can avoid any type of closure and be the basis for a new future for HTO and our community."

The delay came after nonprofit advocacy group The Coalition to Keep East Hampton Airport Open, airport subcontractors such as East End Hangars, Inc. and charter flight booking app Blade filed three lawsuits last week against the town in bids to block the plan. Several local residents were also named as plaintiffs in the suits.

Among the allegations in the lawsuits was the claim that the town did not properly perform an environmental review of the transition under the New York's State Environmental Quality Review Act (SEQRA). The town appeared to address that claim last week when it passed a resolution to have its environmental consultants perform a supplemental SEQRA review of the move. A town attorney did not immediately return a request for comment.

Loren Riegelhaupt, a spokeswoman for the Eastern Region Helicopter Council, called for a cease fire in the litigation.

"For everyone's best interests, we ask that all sides stop filing lawsuits and implore the town not to rush ahead with their misguided plans to close the airport," she said. "Instead, we suggest that all of the impacted parties come together to find a solution that works for all."

Push to Preserve Plum Island Gets Boost

BY TIMOTHY BOLGER

Preservationists are proposing that Plum Island be designated as a national monument — culturally significant historic sites deemed protected areas managed by the federal government — to effectively turn it into a park preserve.

The Long Island Regional Planning Council (LIRPC) is asking Gov. Kathy Hochul to formally request that President Joe Biden make the declaration preserving the 822-acre island off the tip of Orient Point.

"Preserving Plum Island represents a once-in-a-generation opportunity to permanently protect a significant natural and historic resource sitting right off our eastern shore," stated LIRPC Chairman John Cameron,

Advocates previously nixed a federal plan to auction off the land after the Plum Island Animal Disease Center closed, which is expected to happen next year so it can be replaced by a facility in Kansas.

Ninety percent of the island is undeveloped land that is home to federally threatened piping plovers and a migratory stop for hundreds of other bird species. It is also home to nationally significant historic buildings, including the Plum Island Lighthouse built in 1869, and the circa 1897 Fort Terry army barracks and weapons batteries that are on the National Register of Historic Places.

Chasing The New York Times

BY DAN RATTINER

Two years ago this month, I bought my wife a physical subscription to The New York Times, the kind where they throw the paper onto your driveway. She loves reading it the old-fashioned way, with the ink on the paper. As do I. It's better than online. You walk down your driveway every morning. The Times rattles when you unfold it. It rattles again when you turn the page to read the next article. It's ready when you are to read where you left off.

Prior to this, she'd sometimes pick one up while shopping, at Damark's Market Deli or the East Hampton IGA. But it was usually just once or twice a week. It was Valentine's Day 2020. It made a good gift.

Things went along fine for a while. But then, suddenly, in October 2021, it stopped. It wasn't there for two days, then a week, then a week and a half.

The New York Times puts you on hold to transfer you to "delivery." The music they play is jazz – Gerry Mulligan, I think. Very cool.

And then you are talking to somebody. No delivery yesterday? We'll credit you for that day. Oh, a week? I can credit you for no paper for up to a week. What's your address? Twenty-seven Three Mile Harbor Hog Creek Road in East Hampton? Call us back tomorrow and let us know if it's better. Glad to help.

But there was no paper the next day, or the next. I got more credits. But still there was no paper.

I learned a lot about how they handled delivery problems. They really want you to call back every single day to report a nondelivery. I mentioned I like Gerry Mulligan, but being on hold 20 minutes a day was a hardship. They said the more you call, the sooner we'll open an investigation about it.

"We have about 32,000 distributors," an agent said on one call. "It's not easy to do."

I asked for our delivery boy's number.

They said no.

I then told this agent I'd founded Dan's Papers in 1960 and always took delivery seriously to fix any problem.

This didn't go anywhere.

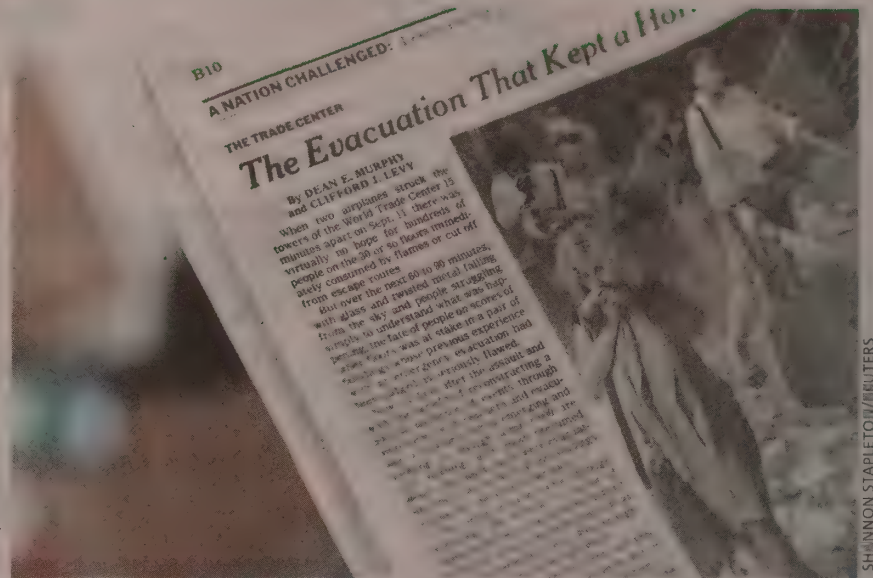

This went on and on. Months went by. They could give me more credit. Did I want to cancel my subscription? No?

This kept up through the end of 2021 and into the winter of 2022. Making matters even worse was the fact there were no credits being deducted on my Amex account. It was $84 a month. They were still charging me as if I got the paper.

An agent spent half an hour looking into that. He found that my wife had ordered a free crossword puzzle from Apple and Apple was now overseeing the billing. When I told my wife she'd have to cancel that for the credits to go through from the Times, she took it well enough. But I still saw no credits.

My calls were now an over-the-top whine. I have paid $600 to The New York Times for you to not deliver my paper. And we pay more when we buy it at the store anyway. Do something! They did nothing.

Then something going on in East Hampton gave me an idea. East Hampton Town owns the East Hampton Airport and wants to make it less noisy, so, on May 17 they will close the airport for two days and then reopen it with the town still the owner, but now it will have a quieter noise level designation.

SHANNON STAPLETON/REUTERS

I'm going to cancel our subscription for four days, I told my wife, then get a new one four days later but in your name instead of mine. Maybe then they'll deliver it to the right place.

Good luck with that, she said.

I called the Times and in two minutes an agent talked me out of it. If you do that, he said, you will lose all the credits we've put into your account. No, we don't refund the money for nondelivery. We credit your account forward. Future deliveries will be at no charge until the credits run out. How about I give you another month of credits and let me fix it?

So I agreed to this. A month free! For a newspaper I pay for but haven't seen in five months. I was stunned that I did this. And this didn't work either.

Now we come to the grand finale of this story. A week ago, we were four miles into the Northwest Woods to meet up with some friends for a beach walk. On the way we passed a road with a street sign that read Three Mile Harbor Drive. We took a detour. Number 27 was an estate with an iron gate. About a dozen copies of a newspaper were sprinkled on the lawn just inside. Newspaper delivery people had been throwing them over the gate and onto the lawn.

I was convinced these were our newspapers but my wife was not so sure. She stopped me from opening the gate to slide out a paper to see if it was The New York Times. You'll get in trouble, she said. They could be newspaper subscribers, too. We drove on.

Later, I found the estate owner's name, address and phone number. Don't ask how I did this.

We're trying to get The New York Times to stop, they told me. We come out about once every other weekend. We don't read it and we don't want it. We're not getting anywhere either.

So here's what happened. On a rainy day Sunday, three days later, we drove over, opened the gate (they'd given us permission) and removed the blue plastic bag with a 6-pound Sunday New York Times in it and drove home.

Sliding the paper out of the plastic, a white envelope fell to the floor. On the front was printed the following: "Happy Valentine's Day. Your delivery boy, Anthony." And there was his phone number. He was hoping to get a tip.

We called the number, he identified himself, and next day he delivered The New York Times to our driveway, and he's been doing it since then. That first day he also delivered the New York Post, Newsday and The Wall Street Journal just to be nice.

Problem solved.

DRIVERS ARE PAYING MORE FOR GAS ON THE EAST END.

How Inflation Is Impacting the East End

BY CLAUDE SOLNIK

The sun isn't the only thing rising in the east.

Signs showing the price of gas at East End stations, in addition to attracting attention, lately have become part of larger signs of the times.

The cost for regular from the Exxon at 2 Montauk Highway in East Hampton, for instance, recently topped $4. Throw in traffic jams that can make every day seem like the trade parade, and you'll find that fuel has become a pricier commodity and bigger overall expense.

"Cost of gas is up, and then there's the time and energy trying to drive around here in much heavier traffic," East Hampton resident Lori Marsden said. "Everything takes forever."

This may be the off-season on the East End, but you wouldn't know it based on the dense traffic and rising prices. More people want to be, and are, on the East End. And gas, of course, has been going up everywhere, as have the costs for most things.

The Hamptons and North Fork have not been immune to inflation.

Gasoline prices over the past year rose a whopping 39.6% in the New York metropolitan area, including Long Island, fueling a 5.1% rise in the local Consumer Price Index for all items, according to Bruce Bergman, an economist with the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Long Island gas prices rose from about $2.60 on February 18, 2020 to nearly $3.70 a year later, jumping more than a buck, according to GasBuddy. The last time Long Island gas prices topped $3.50 was in 2014, when they hovered at around $4, although they dipped to under $2 in 2015 and toward the end of 2019.

The average price of regular gas in Suffolk on February 18 was $3.73 and $3.72 in Nassau, lower than the New York average of $3.75, and above the national average of $3.54, according to AAA. The numbers have been rising: The average Nassau/Suffolk price was $3.72 on February 18, up from $3.41 a month prior and $2.63 a year ago, according to AAA.

"You notice that the groceries are more," Marsden said. "You go and buy your weekly run and it's definitely more. The most apparent is probably meat, not that I buy a lot of it. And I've heard friends complaining about groceries."

Bergman said food costs in the New York metropolitan area rose 7.5% since last January, with meats, poultry, fish and eggs up 16%.

NEWS & VIEWS

GROCERY PRICES ARE UP DUE TO INFLATION

"On the other hand, fruits and vegetables are up only 1.2%," Bergman added, describing a financial reward for healthy choices. "Aside from groceries, dining out has also increased over 7% over the year."

Prices on the East End have been going up from retail to real estate (fueled by low interest rates), and from labor to materials with inflation at 7.5% nationwide in January. That can mean more money in people's pockets, but that quickly flows out to pay higher costs. Even pet boarding has been rising, easily reaching $75 a night.

"We have inflationary pressures from supply chain issues and the labor shortage, which is driving up wages," said John Rizzo, a professor who teaches economics at Stony Brook University, noting 7% inflation is likely for the foreseeable future. "If you make more, but prices are going up as much or more, your spending power is less."

An exodus from Manhattan to the East End is boosting inflation in house prices, while others noted rents also are trending up.

"My observation is that many year-round rental rates have increased between 50-300% on the East End since the pandemic began in March of 2020," said Michael Daly, a South Fork realtor and founder of East End YIMBY, an affordable housing advocacy group.

As more people look east to live, East End residents who travel to reach customers often are sticking closer to home, due to time and cost.

"There are so many more people since COVID," Marsden said. "Anybody dreads the summer season. If you have a small business and try to drive around, it takes forever."

While many New Yorkers vacation in or moved to the East End, some local business people, after a busy year and past few months, have headed off for vacations, leaving fewer businesses to provide services. Marsden recently called a tree removal company, only to find the boss was away for a month.

"This month and the next month is when local business people take off. And the doctors. It used to be a few here and there," Marsden said of month-long vacations. "That seems to be a new thing, too. Because of the COVID uptick, a lot of East Hampton businesses are booming."

Contracts to open and maintain pools are set to go out soon, and they're likely to include price hikes, but there is a silver lining in this cloud of costs. Over the last 20 years, inflation in the region has been higher, Bergman said.

In August and September 2008, for instance, the 12-month percent change in costs was 5.4% and 5.2% respectively, which Bergman said is "higher than what we have now," while grocery prices at that time rose 8% over the year.

How big an impact does a rise in food and gas

have?

"People in the area, on average, have about 13% of their expenditures devoted to food, so price increases are definitely noticeable," Bergman said. "Gasoline accounts for about 2% of the average budget."

From 2013 until the pandemic, the overall rate of price change in the New York metropolitan area was usually less than 2%, Bergman said. And Long Island is far from alone when it comes to seeing rising prices.

"When we look at the entire region, the data suggest that New York area price increases have not been higher than average," Bergman said. "In fact, in the Northeast, small urban areas had a price-rise of 7% over the year."

FOLKS ARE FORKING OVER MORE DOUGH FOR THEIR FOOD.

The Latch in Southampton Village Earns Two National Awards

THE LATCH, A LUXURY DEVELOPMENT BY THE BEECHWOOD ORGANIZATION, RECEIVED TWO AWARDS FROM THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF HOME BUILDERS.

BY TAYLOR K. VECSEY

The Latch, a luxury condominium development in Southampton Village created by The Beechwood Organization, has received two prestigious awards from the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB).

The development, designed by Jim McMullan of Fleetwood & McMullan, and Jason Poremba of Jason Thomas Architect, earned a Platinum award for Historic Preservation and Restoration, and a Gold award for Single Family Community Under 100 Units.

"This is a high honor greatly appreciated by Beechwood and the entire team who worked with us to bring forward the best of the past for future generations to enjoy this beautiful property," says Steven Dubb, The Latch's developer and the principal at The Beechwood Organization.

The Latch Preserved

The Latch, located at 101 and 109 Hill Street, just a short walk to the village's restaurants and shops, consists of 19 townhouses and one single-family home.

In the early 1900s, the property, known as The Village Latch, was "the Grand Annex to Southampton's Irving Hotel across Hill Street," Steven Dubb, Beechwood's founder and CEO, told Dan's Papers in 2020. "Reported guests included Presidents Theodore Roosevelt and John F. Kennedy, the duPonts, Fords and Vanderbilts and Hollywood stars."

In 2016, Beechwood bought the approximately five-acre parcel with an inn that operated 67 rooms across several run-down buildings.

The two turn-of-the-20th-century buildings — the iconic main Latch building and the adjacent Terry Cottage, which had been moved from across the street — were designed by noted Gilded Age architect Sanford White of McKim, Mead & White (White designed many iconic Hamptons homes, such as the Sevens Sisters homes in Montauk, the most famous of which talk show host Dick Cavett sold last year).

With the architects' designs and consultation from Zach Studenroth, the village historian, the exteriors have been preserved. With work complete, cedar-shingled white structures, designed in Federal Revival Period with Dutch Colonial touches, have been returned to their former glory.

The original 40-room Latch building was converted into two townhouses. Beechwood renovated the interior of the Terry Cottage and it remains a single-family home.

Behind the two historic structures, visible from Hill Street, are 17 new townhouses and a McMullan-designed clubhouse on a private cul-de-sac. The townhouses appear connected by a single shingle-style facade. The homes feature open floorplans and high finishes and appliances, while the clubhouse provides a fitness center and outdoor pool.

Pre-construction sales began in 2021 with homes ranging from $2.6 to $7 million — and all units were sold by the end of the year.

Part of the NAHB's Best in American Living Awards, they are considered the nation's top honor for home builders in the largest network of craftsmen, innovators and problem-solvers. An awards ceremony was held at the 2022 International Builders' Show in Orlando, Florida.

The Latch also received a Vision Long Island Smart Growth Award in 2021.

This was the third project in Southampton Village for Beechwood, one of the largest developers of single-family and multifamily housing in New York State. The developer was also behind 69 luxury condominium units at Bishops Pond on South Margee Street, as well as Bishops Grant on North Main Street where there are four estate homes.

Founded by Michael Dubb, Beechwood has built more than 7,500 homes in 60 communities across the New York metro area since 1985, including new developments in Saratoga and New York City.

THE VILLAGE LATCH INN DATES BACK TO 1895.

How To Prevent Costly Winter Damage

The two biggest things homeowners can do to prevent winter weather from causing costly damage is reduce the risk of ice dams and take action to keep pipes from bursting.

To reduce the risk of ice dams, insulate and ventilate attic space. The underlying cause of ice dams is a warm roof. Attics should be properly ventilated to carry away warm air and all points where warm air may leak up into the attic should be sealed.

To prevent burst pipes, install a water shut-off device. This technology monitors your home's water flow and automatically shuts off your main water valve when a suspected leak is detected.

If you plan to be away from home, open cabinets under faucets, especially near exterior walls, to allow warm air from the living space to circulate in enclosed areas. While traveling, have a relative, neighbor, contractor or caretaker periodically check your unoccupied home for temperature and leaks.

Keep consistent interior temperature: Maintain a consistent interior temperature of at least 65°F during the winter, especially when you are away from home.

Jacques LeBlanc

JACQUES LEBLANC

BY DAVID TAYLOR

Our first round of Dan's Papers Photo Contests came to a close in January, with "The Big Duck" by Jacques LeBlanc selected as the inaugural grand prize winner. Here, LeBlanc discusses his winning shot, Long Island photography career and inspirations.

This week's cover photo is such a unique perspective of an iconic East End landmark — what inspired this fresh point of view?

My roots are in film photography where often a great deal of time is spent on visualizing the image to be captured before pushing the shutter button. In this case, I wanted to capture the "bigness" of the duck while keeping in mind the size and shape of a Dan's Paper cover. I walked around without my camera for a few minutes, first from afar and then up close. This is typical for me. I have seen a lot of photos of the Big Duck, and I was looking for something different. When I got up close and looked up, it was as if the duck was looming over me as a giant might in a science fiction movie. Now the duck looked big! I went back to the car, got the camera and took this one image. The image would not have been the same if there were clouds in the sky or if it was overcast, and I would have made a note to return another day. However, this day I was lucky to have a clear blue sky. The intensity of the three colors and how well they worked together was the final piece in creating this image.

What does your typical process of planning, taking and editing a photo look like?

I almost always work with a plan that starts well before I take the image. I usually have locations in mind and what sky or lighting conditions will work best for the image that I am visualizing. For example, if I am taking photographs of farms on a particular day, the sky and weather can be a very important component to the final image. If the sky is overcast, it might be a better day to photograph a town's main street where the softer light enhances images by reducing shadows.

As for editing, I have the most basic of post editing tools for lighting adjustments, color enhancement, cropping, etc. I don't own Photoshop. However, I do occasionally use paint, both digitally with a paint program and literally with water color paints, in a sort of hybrid image that has become my most recognized style of work.

What's something you've learned during your long career as a Long Island photographer, and do you have any advice to share?

Things can change quickly. In the past, I might not have stopped the car to take a photograph, only to be disappointed to find it gone the next time I passed the spot. The lighting might not be correct or the time of year, but take a minute if you can and capture the scene that caught your eye. It might be an ordinary one today that might not be an ordinary one tomorrow.

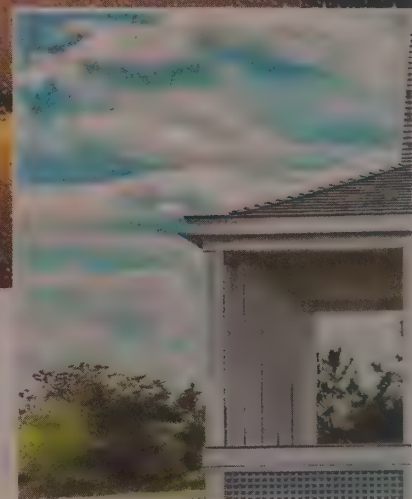

I am often asked about what equipment to buy as if that is the only way to get better images. They are often very disappointed when I tell them what I use to capture my images. Instead, I recommend they save their money and read everything that they can about composition. The fastest way to improving your photography, in my opinion, is in the composition of your image.

What photo subjects or local iconography inspire you most as a photographer?

I am drawn to the farms, towns and main streets of the East End. Growing up in the center of potato farms, my first recollection is of a sky that went from horizon to horizon. So, when I take photographs of farms on Long Island, I try to recreate that image the best I can. Many viewers will comment, "That is the way I remember it when I was growing up," even though their individual ages are spread over many decades. There apparently is enough of the image there to trigger a memory and hopefully leave them with a feeling of nostalgia. People want to feel that things haven't totally changed and my photos often remind them of what they once saw.

Towns and main streets are special to me in that they represent a clear connection to the past and the feeling of "home." In addition, I have always loved architecture and was lucky enough to spend 35 years teaching in that field. I especially take pride in illustrating the classic styling of the traditional architecture of the East End. Modern architecture has emerged across the region, but there is still a connection to the simplicity and elegance left by earlier residents. In many ways the East End is timeless and I try to capture that in its unique towns and main streets.

What accomplishment as a photographer are you most proud of?

It has to be this. I have been a reader of Dan's Papers for probably the entire 60 years and to be the first grand prize photographer on its cover is beyond my comprehension. It is a huge honor for me. Thank you.

What do you find most fulfilling or exciting about being a photographer?

I find it most fulfilling that so many people have an emotional or ethereal connection to my work. Some actually want to hang it in their house! Photography has always been exciting to me, and I am so blessed to be able to share it with such a strong sense of support from so many.

My extended family

I bought Dan's Papers in September 2020.

I had admired him for decades from a distance, and when we closed on the purchase, my first request to the seller Richard Burns was, "Can I meet or talk to Dan?" I wanted to tell him, "I will take good care of your baby."

Dan had created his paper as a 20-year-old kid living with his parents who owned a pharmacy in Montauk. Rather than work there, he decided to start a community newspaper.

It's very special when friends become extended family.

Launching Dan's Papers Palm Beach has transplanted me into a new world and allowed me to make new friends here who have become like family. They embraced me, making me feel welcome and giving me joy to be there.

In addition to writing my weekly column, I host my Power Women podcast. This week, I interviewed old and dear friend Judge Judy Sheindlin, who is like family, about our growing up in Brooklyn and her new, entertaining streaming IMDB TV show Judy Justice. Listen to the podcast at podcasts.schnepsmedia.com/2022/02/17/judge-judy-sheindlin/.

I'm also now hosting a TV show, Dan's Papers Palm Beach Roundtable, with Emmy Award-winning broadcaster Jane Hanson. The show will soon be streamed across all of our media's websites that reach nearly 10 million page views every month.

We have had such fun doing it and I'm so grateful to Enzo Morabito of Douglas Elliman in Westhampton for becoming the sponsor of the series, which we are taping at the beautiful, elegant and iconic Colony Hotel in Palm Beach.

But, of course, it's the guests who make the series great!

This week, we interviewed, my favorite friend, the indomitable and brilliant writer Dan Rattiner, the founder of and now contributing editor for Dan's Papers.

He and I bonded when Josh and

I met Peter McCracken, a top real estate broker in Shelter Island for Corcoran, at a Palm Beach restaurant.

Our lives were almost parallel in that he wrote every story, he sold every ad and he distributed it locally in Montauk, now 63 years ago.

Ironically, I started The Queens Courier in my living room in 1985 with John Toscano, a retired political editor from the New York Daily News who had started a weekly newspaper in Astoria, where he lived.

We wrote every story, took every photo and sold every ad. John's son Louis delivered every paper.

I vividly remember our first issue in May 1985. After hours of working with the typesetter/designer, we finally drove to Long Island City at 1 a.m. to watch the paper come off the presses.

Taping Dan's Papers Palm Beach Roundtable at The Colony Hotel with (l. to r.) Dan Rattiner, Jane Hanson, Bill Boggs and Jane Rothschild.

As we entered the massive press room, smelling of ink and chemicals, we took our layout boards into the camera room. We watched as they "shot" each page, creating a plate that was then transferred to the massive presses. It felt like time stood still until they brought us the first run of our "baby."

To my shock and dismay, the picture of a newborn baby we had chosen to represent the birth of our first issue was printed as a black blob. I immediately screamed out over the din of the presses, "STOP THE PRESSES," and they did!

Fortunately, the baby photo was in the back seat of our car. We retrieved it and ran back to the camera room, where the printers reshot the photo, made a new plate and replated the presses. About an hour later, they said, "Well, lady, are you satisfied?"

With a proud smile on my face, I said "yes," and then off went the rumbling, noisy presses running at full speed!

On Ted Vassilev's boat with artist Clarence James, Ted, Adele, Chris, Dan and Derek.

By 3 a.m., I was home sleeping with a smile on my face.

We did it!

Fast forward, and I was so excited to learn that Dan totally has the same sense of fervor and passion for community journalism that I do.

On our first call, we immediately bonded and, to my delight, he invited me to his and his wife Chris Wasserstein's charming East Hampton home perched high on a hill overlooking Three Mile Harbor.

We have since become fast friends, and I am happy that Dan is still involved with the paper, writing a weekly column and more for our Dan's subscription newspaper filled with his genius ideas and thoughts.

He visited me while staying at his Manhattan friends Adele Fuchsberg and Dr. Derek Enlander's home in Palm Beach.

While there, Jane and I invited Dan to join us for a taping of Dan's Papers

Palm Beach Roundtable, where we were also interviewing iconic broadcaster extraordinaire Bill Boggs, who is an author, lecturer and raconteur, with his partner, Jane Rothschild.

Jane had been a producer of The $10,000 Pyramid TV show after beginning her career with Johnny Carson. She is now with Brown Harris Stevens, living in East Hampton, Manhattan and Palm Beach — what I now call the "Golden Triangle."

During the interviews, we all laughed as they each recalled special memories, but nothing topped Bill's graphic and dramatic telling of John Belushi's visit/interview on his TV show.

What fun it was to do this interview and five other shows. More to come!

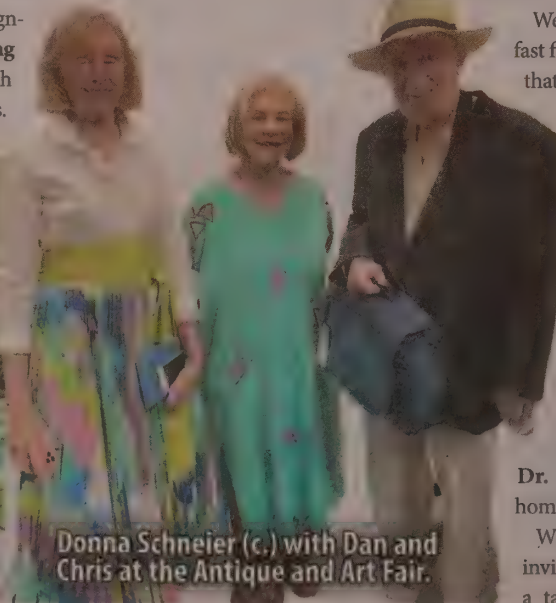

You will be able to stream the shows across our media outlets, as well as iTunes and Spotify.

To my delight, our newest media outlet, Dan's Papers Palm Beach, has been a great success in this picture-perfect piece of the world and has introduced me to many new friends that feel like family in my adopted city.

What a joyous time!

Eric Lemonides, co-owner of Almond, with Dan and Chris.

Donna Schneier (c.) with Dan and Chris at the Antique and Art Fair.

A Letter from the Team:

Spending any amount of time on the East End means enjoying the best that life has to offer, but with the area providing such a high standard of products and services, how does one know which are the best of the best?

Whether you're looking for award-winning wineries or renowned restaurants, chic hotels or hot nightspots, world-class shopping and entertainment or the top providers of home and professional services, the way to discover the very best in the Hamptons and on the North Fork is by perusing the Dan's Best of the Best winners list each year.

Since its inception in the 1990s, this list has been driven by the input and insights of savvy locals, visitors and second-home owners who know these businesses and individuals intimately. The latest edition of the Dan's Best of the Best winners list, sponsored by East End institution Dime Community Bank, is the culmination of tens of thousands of votes in the 2021 Dan's Best of the Best competition, each placed by readers of Dan's Papers, DansPapers.com and DansBOTB.com. Included are winners voted as the best in hundreds of categories that matter most to you, as well as our Hall of Fame honorees, which have stood the test of time, winning a Dan's Best of the Best category 10 or more times over the years.

Turn the page and learn where to find the best burgers in the Hamptons, the best hair stylist on the North Fork — where to find stellar rosé or a reliable handyman. It's all here, thanks to votes from readers like you.

And congratulations are in order for the winning businesses, organizations and passionate people crowned champions in this year's competition! They've weathered quite the storm over these last two years and have not only survived, they've thrived in their communities and provided so much to us all on the East End. They truly are the best of the best.

For features on Dan's Best of the Best winners, follow Dan's Papers on Facebook, Twitter and at DansPapers.com. For the digital comprehensive list of 2021 winners, as well as news of when 2022 nominations open and 2022 competition voting begins later this year, visit DansBOTB.com.

Congratulations, Best of the Best HALL OF FAMERS!

Since the very first year votes were cast for Dan's Best of the Best via mail-in ballot, the public has chosen a select group of East End businesses, venues, events, performers and more as Dan's Best of the Best, a designation that has become a coveted and welcome honor for all who have earned it. Over time, some have won this title numerous times, so Dan's Papers instituted the Dan's Best of the Best Hall of Fame to pay special homage to those who rise to the top of the list every year. To qualify for the Hall of Fame, a Dan's Best of the Best contender must have won 10 times in the past and must be presented for Hall of Fame consideration.

This year Dan's Papers is delighted to induct five new members into the Hall of Fame in six categories — Ace Chimney Experts, All Island Handyman & Construction, Hamptons Employment Agency, M. Stevens Roofing & Remodeling and The Schindler Cleaning Companies — all of whom we feel truly represent the Best of the Best. On the next page, you'll find the 24 Hall of Fame honorees inducted in years prior, which we continue to honor each year.

OUTCROPPING: Southampton Arts Center Show Features Exclusively Indigenous Art

BY DAVID TAYLOR

Throughout the history of the Southampton art scene, Shinnecock Nation art and artists have remained just outside the spotlight. Despite their art-rich culture and central location in the Southampton Town (or rather, Southampton's location in what was once much larger Shinnecock territory), Shinnecock artists haven't been given many opportunities to showcase their works in the Hamptons' prestigious art museums and galleries. Southampton Arts Center's current exhibition is a step toward correcting that.

Created by SAC and the show's curator Jeremy Dennis, Shinnecock artist and head of Ma's House & BIPOC Art Studio Inc., OUTCROPPING: Indigenous Art Now is touted as Southampton's first Indigenous-focused exhibition of this scale and scope. The show features nearly 50 Native American artists from across the country, 12 of which are Shinnecock. Given the opportunity to curate a show of this nature, Dennis could have kept the scope small and hyper-focused on his local community, but he saw a way to maximize the show's celebratory and educational factors.

"I think Shinnecock artists — even though we're a small community, and the artist community is even smaller — could've filled the space, but I wanted it to be a celebration of Indigenous art in today's world," he says. "I love the idea of Shinnecock as a sovereign nation and as an entity, and the fact that we can engage with other Indigenous groups and still retain who we are."

Emphasizing the fact that no two Indigenous cultures are exactly alike, OUTCROPPING allows SAC visitors to peruse a wide variety of works that highlight the different styles and techniques but also the traditions and struggles of the featured artists (whose tribal affiliation and artist statement is included beside the piece). With sequential rooms focused on books and research materials, Shinnecock artists and other Native America artists, several important topics are brought to the forefront of discussion and, hopefully, greater understanding.

"In this exhibit, we're really happy to get the public to engage with Indigenous artists and to understand some of the issues that we face today," Dennis says. "I would say a lot of artworks deal with land back initiatives, histories of genocide, cultural identity, loss and assimilation, and just going back to tradition, connecting the past to the present." He adds that there has been a great deal of engagement with this "huge learning opportunity," which may not have played out the same way were this a museum exhibit on Indigenous struggles of the past. "People come in with an open mind because it's art," he says.

Those open minds are a long time coming. Even the very definition of fine art has been historically exclusive of Indigenous views on art. "In Indigenous communities, we're traditionally known for our dance and our craft — making beads and rocks into jewelry. I think craft is one of those things that is still on the margins of fine art," Dennis says, adding that passed down traditions and self-expression are mostly communicated through art in Indigenous cultures. "That's one of the reasons why in Native communities, this is such a high demographic of occupation (30% of individuals in Native American communities). It's just a way of surviving, practicing who you are and telling your story."

OUTCROPPING artists include Dennis, Pauline Leilani Badamo, Matt Ballard, Greg Ballenger, Michael Billie, Lisa Bowen, Joe Don Brave, Tecumseh Ceaser, Leeanna Chipana, Marcus Xavier Chormicle, Mona Cliff, Selena Coverdale, Nathaniel Cummings-Lambert, Dennis Redmoon Darkeem, Kelly Dennis, Haley Greenfeather English, Jaida Grey Eagle, Vanessa Dion Fletcher, Kaysha Haile, Elisa Harkins, Beth Hazen, Durrell

JEREMY DENNIS (CENTER), DENISE SILVA-DENNIS AND GUESTS

Hunter, Alex Jacobs-Blum, Margaret Jacobs, Chaz John, Jamie R. John, Matthew Kirk, Kite, Ian Kual'i, Jay Laxton, Cannupa Hanska Luger, Ella Mahoney, David Bunn Martine, Richard Mayhew, Megan McDermott, Jenny Irene Miller, Ehren Natay, Shelley Niro, Krystyna Printup, Tricia Rainwater, Herbert Randall, Eric Roddy, Cara Romero, Denise Silva-Dennis, Skawennati, Gloria Smith, Kevin Umana, Tohanash Tarrant, Renelle White and Shane Weeks.

"Shinnecock has been here for thousands of years, and in all that time there's never been a real presence of Shinnecock art or business or anything like that in Southampton Town or Village. I think this is historic in so many different ways," Dennis says, noting how incredible it is to see an entire exhibition of Indigenous artists, rather than one token representative. "It's a really awesome sign of change, so I'm really happy to be part of the process, and I hope it's just the start."

Running alongside the OUTCROPPING exhibition, have been several educational Indigenous-focused events at SAC organized by ancillary programming curatorial associate Shane Weeks. Programs have included a wampum crafting workshop, figure drawing workshops and a sold-out film night and Q&A with Shinnecock filmmaker Ginew Benton. Upcoming events include a final figure drawing workshop on Friday, February 25 at 1 p.m., an open house community gathering on February 25 at 6 p.m. and a Shinnecock medicinal plant workshop on Saturday, February 26 at 3 p.m.

OUTCROPPING is on view at Southampton Arts Center (25 Jobs Lane, Southampton) Friday through Sunday, noon–5 p.m., through April 9. Learn more at southamptonartscenter.org/outcropping.

COURTESY MANNA AT LOBSTER INN

MANNA AT LOBSTER INN OFFERS MORE THAN LOBSTER (BUT LOBSTER IS THEIR NAMESAKE FOR A REASON)

BY HARRY POWERS

We think we know how to cook a steak, right? But what about how to prepare fingerling potatoes, creamed spinach, as well as a cabernet demi-glaze? Chef Scott Kampf of Union Sushi & Steak in Southampton shares recipes for all these goodies below. Enjoy!

The off-season might not strike someone as the best time to eat out in Southampton, however, you'd be pleasantly surprised by the slew of delicious options. Saaz Indian Cuisine is always mentioned whenever the conversation of best Indian restaurant on Long Island arises. Excellent dishes include the shrimp biryani, chicken tikka and yellow dal. Try the lunch buffet, offered daily. Saaz delivers and offers a vegetarian menu as well.

Tate's Bake Shop will keep you warm and content as we brave these last few weeks of Baltic weather. The signature thin, crispy chocolate chip cookie is well-known, but the other flavors deserve some shine. Check out the walnut chocolate chip and double chocolate chip variety. Tate's now offers plant-based cookies, available in chocolate chip and vanilla maple.

For water views, Manna at Lobster Inn is the haunt for you. Manna recently started serving a toothsome brunch menu on the weekends, featuring eggs Benedict, avocado toast and French toast. Also, every purchase of lobster bisque ramen includes a complimentary order of spicy crunchy tuna rice or edamame.

75 Main is a Southampton mainstay. On warmer days, one can sit outdoors and enjoy entrees such as balsamic, honey and mustard roasted Scottish salmon, crispy whole fish over steamed Jasmine rice and orecchiette.

Shippy's Pumpernickel gets its name from original owner William "Shippy" Casgrain. Shippy served in the Merchant Marines and his agreeable nature was renowned. Famous friends like Jackie Gleason and Jack Dempsey would pay visits and watch him tend bar. This benign spirit is still alive today at Shippy's.

Happy hour can be enjoyed Monday through Friday at Southampton Publick House. Specials include $5 beers, $8 wine and half-off on wings and burgers. The shrimp scampi risotto and NY sirloin au poivre are sumptuous bellyfuls.

Sant Ambroeus' hip décor matches the quality of the food and service. The seafood ravioli in vodka sauce topped with large jumbo shrimp is popular. Don't leave without trying one of their tasty desserts, including gelato and coffee drinks.

Loaves and Fishes in Sagaponack is back from a winter break. There are plenty of selections to choose from such as turkey meatballs, Thai shrimp cakes and grilled citrus salmon. The menu changes weekly. This month's featured ice cream flavor is milk chocolate sea salt caramel.

The very popular Trivia Night returns to TownLine BBQ in Sagaponack. It's every Thursday night from 7-9 p.m. and those interested need to sign up by Monday evening. There's a $10 per person fee. Look for the link on TownLine's Facebook or Instagram page — and enjoy!

Did You Know: Bees' Needs has scored a sixth national Good Food Award! Owner and beekeeper Mary Woltz of Sag Harbor beat out stiff competition. There were 244 winners who hailed from 39 states. For more info, check out goodfaithfdn.org. Congratulations, Mary!

Recipe: Chef Scott Kampf's 22oz Dry Aged Ribeye With Fingerling Potatoes, Creamed Spinach & Cabernet Demi-Glaze

STEAK INGREDIENTS:

One 22 oz dry aged rib eye steak (ours comes from Niman Ranch in Colorado and is antibiotic free, grass fed and dry aged for 30 days)

Fresh ground salt and pepper
3 tablespoons of clarified butter

DIRECTIONS:

1. Remove from refrigeration 20 minutes prior to cooking.
2. Heat cast-iron skillet on medium-high
3. Once heating has started, add 3 tablespoons clarified butter to skillet.
4. While heating pan, generously season the meat on both sides with fresh ground salt and pepper.

Something to Wine About:

Long Island Sauvignon Blanc

BY LINDA DELMONICO PRUSSEN

When thinking of sauvignon blanc, the country that comes to mind for most wine lovers is New Zealand. And it's easy to understand why. Wines from New Zealand dominate the wine store section of sauvignon blanc. But sauvignon blanc is grown in many regions around the world, such as South Africa and France, and all put their own special stamp on this predominantly citrusy, sometimes grassy, fruit-forward grape.

Another surprising region with some stunning examples of sauvignon blanc is our own Long Island. And while red is the wine most sought after in the cold winter months, sauvignon is one of the easiest wines to pair with seafood, and it's also a terrific accompaniment to Asian food, many vegetables, and salads regardless of the time of year.

Below are three very different versions of the delightful varietal.

Macari Vineyards' 2020 Katherine's Field Sauvignon Blanc greets you with a lovely lemony nose. On the palate this 100% sauvignon blanc has slightly grassy notes blending with lime and herbaceous notes. It is completely stainless steel fermented and retails for $24.

The 2020 Bridge Lane Sauvignon Blanc is 94% sauvignon blanc and 6% pinot gris. This wine has the classic citrus notes of sauvignon blanc, but less grapefruit, more tangerine, and clementines. These happy flavors dance on your tongue with much less grapefruit astringency than most New Zealand sauvignon blancs.

And for something quite different a soft, round, sauvignon blanc from Saltbird Cellars. The 2019 Saltbird Cellars Migratus Sauvignon Blanc is a richer version of sauvignon blanc. This 100% sauvignon blanc is fermented in neutral oak barrels and extensive sur lie treatment — a process in which leftover yeast particles that settle on the tank or barrel bottom are gently stirred into the wine. Both sur lie treatment and oak give this lovely wine a smoothness not often associated with sauvignon blanc. The 2019 Saltbird Cellars Migratus Sauvignon Blanc retails for $27.

Peconic Bay Winery also had released a delicious sauvignon blanc vintage 2020, but it is sold out. Looking forward to tasting their next one!

Shinnecock Voices:

White Man to the Rescue!

BY MARGO THUNDERBIRD

While various media outlets, both print and online, tout the victory of the Shinnecock on the return of their sacred site known as Sugar Loaf Hill, none more than The Southampton Press came close to exposing the reality of the situation: that the transaction is still just on paper in a paper game, and the papers are still in the hands of the white men.

And the Indians? The ones for whom this paper trail has been created?

Well, if you take the coverage in the Press (see the August 29, 2021 issue) to heart, we are very photogenic people who are mere window dressing to the continuing Roger Waters/Pink Floyd story.

I want to state here that Mr. Waters is a really nice guy. He has a genuine heart, a quick intelligence and wit, and firmly believes in his politics, his truths. He has been consistent in his views over the years, using his talents to express them and share them, and his “bulls—ometer” is fine-tuned from all of his travels and exposures around the world. He has been a true and real help to the Shinnecock Nation. From the start of his acquaintance with Shinnecock and our land issues, he has offered his help, and when called for, put his money where his mouth is. Roger Waters is on the right side of history in this. On our side. And it makes sense for him to use his well-earned fame to speak on, and give informed interviews about, the issues of land return and preservation that the Shinnecock have fought to correct for generations. In the world of celebrity worship, the opportunity to get up close and personal with a Roger Waters-status celeb is irresistible to reporters, no matter the subject matter.

However, he is not the first or only nice guy, famous rocker to pick up on Native issues and help to carry them to national attention. And as always, the reporter/media focused on the celebrity, leaving the central issue to take a back seat to the buzz created with the celebrity presence. Generally speaking, though, the famous person does not intentionally take center stage above the issue. Rather he or she is thrust there by ones who make their living selling headlines. And nowhere is name dropping to impress more prevalent, than here in the Hamptons.

And so, from the POV of the celebrity, Roger Waters, through an interview with a reporter, the readers of The Southampton Press are presented with the story of Sugar Loaf. A story presented as a victory for the Shinnecock, who have indeed worked hard for many years to wrest this sacred site from the greedy grasp of real estate developers. But it is not a complete story by any means.

Where is Munguntucksee, where are his remains?

We know that you disturbed his grave

So, what is it you gained?

*To build that house on sacred ground
You've taken out his bones.*

Where is Munguntucksee?

Its time he came back home. (mt2017)

The almost, sorta, kinda, maybe one day, return of Sugar Loaf Hill to the Shinnecock.

“White man speaks with forked tongue,” is an expression that means two things come out of his mouth at the same time. Speaking a duality of lies, but never the truth.

“Return to the Shinnecock” implies a generosity that doesn't really exist. Returning the paper title to original land-owners is not returning land, it is relinquishing a claim to that land without conditions.

This is not the case with Sugar Loaf Hill.

The tricky treaty language rises up out of the cacophony of words praising the goodness of the Town of Southampton in the part they played in this “historic” land return.

The tricky participation by the Town of Southampton includes their delaying tactics from the time they voted to use CPF money to purchase the property.

The tricky treaty language says, “waive our Shinnecock sovereign immunity,” before the transfer of title to the Nation, to ensure the Town's jurisdiction stays in place. It says, “the Town holds easement rights,” that would allow public access to the site, ie: hiking trails.

Return of Indian lands to the original landowners shouldn't come with caveats. Attempting to keep any type of hold on the property nullifies the statement “return to Shinnecock.”

This “return” was negotiated between four white men. white man no.1 held the title until white man no.2 paid to hold the title, with money provided by white man no.3, the payment augmented by yet another white man, no.4.

Shinnecock is nowhere in the equation. We are only mentioned in the context of “... one of their most sacred burial grounds.”

Beware the tricky treaty language! White man speaks with forked tongue because their language is structured that way!

The conditional nature of this “historic land return” guarantees time for the Town and Peconic Land Trust to discuss among themselves ways to devise new hurdles for the Nation in actually holding/owning the paper title by effectively moving the goalposts. This transaction could go on for years beyond the two promised, all the while milking the publicity and kudos received from those who only see the surface. Those who are only shown the surface.

This story will go on and on, and yet it is only one story of many. The truth is, the entirety of the Town of Southampton exists on stolen land. From border to border, all land titles are suspect.

Burial grounds and living grounds.

Since 1640, it has been the responsibility of the Town of Southampton to oversee the growth and progress of its township, and since 1640, the Town has dealt nefariously with the Indigenous Shinnecock, trying to get them to relinquish lands to the ever-growing white population.

Three hundred and eighty one years

is long enough.

When The Southampton Press headline reads “Sugar Loaf Hill Returned to the Shinnecock Nation, No Strings Attached!” and the photo below the headline shows the town supervisor in front of Southampton Town Hall, handing the land's legal deed over to the Nation representative — that is when I will celebrate our Shinnecock victory.

And not one minute before.

“Shinnecock Voices” is a monthly column in which citizens of the Shinnecock Nation share stories and opinions, discuss the projects and campaigns they're efforting, and allow readers an inside view into their incredible community.

Ask Beatty:

Listen Carefully, Did You Hear What I Said?

GETTY IMAGES

BY BEATTY COHAN, MSW, LCSW, AASECT

Since the discovery of the spoken word, we've all been talking nonstop and understanding each other less and less. We talk but often we don't express our needs or our feelings in a clear voice, expecting instead that our partners, family, friends and colleagues will magically be able to read our minds. On the other hand, we may think that we're listening, but frequently our own egos and insecurities, and wants and needs get in the way. Effective communication can only happen when people are committed to learning the skills of emotional communication and problem-solving. Specific kinds of positive behavior that facilitate communication include: honesty, openness, directness, lovingness, respectfulness, selflessness, kindness, carefulness and acceptance. If you are someone who has difficulty expressing your true feelings, trust me — you are not alone.

During the past 35 years as a practicing psychotherapist and sex therapist, having treated thousands of men and women of all ages and stages of life and socioeconomic backgrounds, I can definitely say that communication and problem-solving are challenges for most of us. In my couples sessions I spend considerable time, regardless of the issue or issues, teaching people HOW TO SAY IT, WHEN TO SAY IT, WHERE TO SAY IT, IF TO SAY IT and how to do this well. The end goal is to help people develop and foster honest, open, healthy and loving relationships.

HOW WELL DO YOU COMMUNICATE? Take my test and find out.

1. Do you say what you mean and mean what you say in an honest, caring and careful fashion?
2. Do you avoid expressing your true feelings for fear of offending or hurting someone else?

3. Do you deny your feelings because you feel that you are not worthy of having your needs met?

4. Do you suppress your feelings for fear of being rejected?

5. Do you project your feelings onto others?

6. Do you displace your feelings instead of directly confronting the person or persons with whom you are upset? For example, you throw the remote control across the room instead of letting your partner know that you are angry with him/her.

7. Do you blame others for your problems instead of taking personal responsibility?

8. Do you manipulate others to get your own way, instead of working differences out fairly?

9. Are you defensive when conflicts arise, and are not willing to consider other viewpoints?

The following are a couple of real-life case histories from my practice that illustrate how problems can be solved when people are open to learning the art of emotional communication.

JUNE AND ALEX: June is a high-level executive at a Fortune 500 company. Her boss is overly critical and demanding. Her coworkers are so worried about their own jobs that there is little, if any, camaraderie. When she told her boyfriend Alex about her situation, he told her to stop complaining and just do her job, since he, too, had his own stresses at work. Alex's lack of understanding, support and compassion in a variety of other ways prompted June to consider ending their relationship. She was tired of having a partner who was emotionally unavailable.

THE PROBLEM: Alex doesn't seem able to acknowledge June's worries, fears and frustrations about her work. He shuts her down and instead of empathizing with her about the situation, he berates her and makes her wrong. He was also unable to express his own feelings about how he, too, was feeling insecure about his own career path.

THE SOLUTION: Alex and June decided to try couple's therapy as a last effort before ending their relationship. Alex apologized for his lack of sensitivity and told June how sorry he was that she was having a hard time at work. He asked her whether she wanted to talk about her situation and hear some of his ideas that could potentially help, and was able to finally acknowledge his own fears about his own job. Together they became natural allies in supporting each other. They learned how effective communication and the expression of empathy and compassion made all the difference in the world. This helped them to move forward rather than break up.

SAMANTHA AND ROBERT: Samantha is happy with her sex life with Robert. However, Robert recently has been complaining that they don't make love enough. He has been cold and distant recently but refuses to have a conversation about their sex life. When Samantha asks him if something is wrong, he turns it around and accuses her of wanting to have an argument. Robert is spending more and more time with friends and when he and Samantha are together he routinely makes suggestive comments about how sexy and attractive other women are.

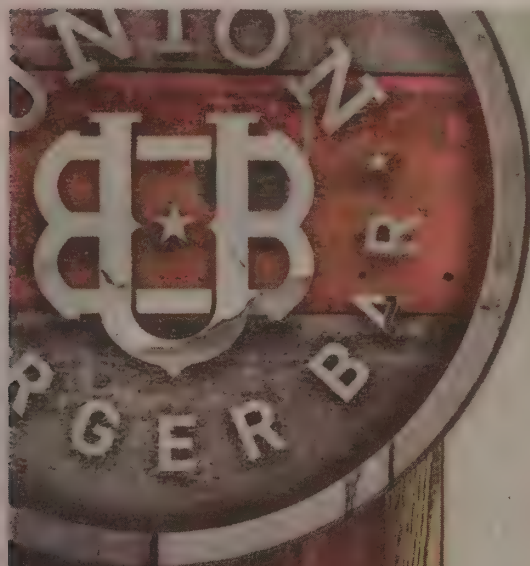

THE PROBLEM: Robert is exhibiting passive aggressive behavior. He is avoiding discussing the real issue, which is his disappointment with the lack of sex in their relationship. Avoiding the subject and making hurtful comments to Samantha will ensure that both their sex life, as well as the quality of their relationship outside the bedroom, will only deteriorate.

THE SOLUTION: As a result of our therapy, Robert was finally able to let Samantha know how angry and disappointed he was about the couple's lack of sexual frequency and apologized for his hurtful behavior toward her. They began to have honest dialogues about their sex life and are in the process of figuring out some compromises that will hopefully work for both of them.

In summary, when issues and problems arise, we need to find the words and the way to communicate our feelings directly and honestly. We need to be willing to acknowledge, address and RESOLVE issues as best as we can — even though we can't change history. The goal should be to always try and find a win/win resolution if at all possible. Otherwise, it is virtually impossible to have a satisfying relationship with anyone.

The East End is gearing up for another year of yummy bites and good times at the Katy's Courage Skate-a-Thon and Bake Sale, and Love Bites tasting event. All proceeds from these two annual celebrations benefit Katy's Courage, a local nonprofit raising funds to support education and families and children through scholarships, children's bereavement care and pediatric cancer research — all in the name of Katy Stewart, a beloved Sag Harbor girl who died at just 12 years old of a rare pediatric cancer in 2011.

Festivities begin with the 10th annual Katy's Courage Skate-a-Thon and Bake Sale at the Buckskill Winter Club (178 Buckskill Road) in East Hampton on Saturday, March 5 at 10:30 a.m. The fun-filled day includes a full roster of activities that continue into the evening, including ice skating, of course, skate classes, hockey for adults and kids, curling, an ice show, raffle drawing and more. A bake sale will offer delicious treats to participants and viewers throughout the day. Pre-registration is required for the hockey games — parents and kids from 10:30 a.m.–noon ($35), adults from 7:45–9:15 p.m. ($35) — and to try curling ($20) from 4–5:30 p.m. Register online at buckskillwinterclub.com, by emailing info@buckskillwinterclub.com or by calling the club directly at 631-324-2243.

Love Bites kicks off at The Clubhouse (174 Daniel's Lane) in East Hampton on Saturday, March 12 at 6:30 p.m. and features unlimited tastings, beer, wine and specialty drinks, as well as music by East End Entertainment, and dancing until 9:30 p.m. This gathering for a good cause has an epic roster of participating chefs, restaurants and food purveyors, including event chair and renowned chef Pete Ambrose of Events by Peter Ambrose, Bostwick's Clambakes & Catering, Golden Pear Cafe, Dreesen's Donuts, Jerri's Cakery & Confections, Art of Eating, Bamboo Restaurant & Sushi Bar of Southampton, Hampton Coffee Company, Bell & Anchor, Grace & Grit Events, Brooklyn's Pig Beach BBQ, Silver Spoon Specialties, South Fork Bakery and Union Sushi & Steak.

In addition to the food, drinks and dancing, golf lovers at Love Bites can buy tickets for the annual Ultimate Golf Raffle. A $100 ticket, which also benefits Katy's Courage, puts participants in the running for one of several exciting prizes, such as a

New OT Policy Would Benefit Farm Workers But Burden Struggling Farms

BY BERNADETTE STARZEE

A policy that would bring overtime rules for farm laborers in line with workers in other industries cleared an important hurdle in New York State in January.

The Farm Laborer Wage Board voted to recommend that the state labor commissioner reduce the threshold for farm workers to begin receiving overtime pay from 60 to 40 hours per week, and that the change be phased in over the next 10 years. The board decision has sparked fierce debate, with labor groups declaring it's about time, and agricultural trade groups bemoaning the financial burden it will add to farm operations, many of which are small businesses that are struggling to stay afloat amid rising labor costs.

"Over the last few years, the supply of labor has been very tight, and that's a systematic problem on Long Island that goes for everybody, not just agriculture," says Robert Carpenter, administrative director of the Long Island Farm Bureau, which counts many of the approximate 550 farms in Suffolk County among its members.

"We all have the same season," says Lisa Sannino, founder of Sannino Vineyard in Cutchogue, which employs workers in both its winemaking and tasting room operations. "So we're all competing for the same workers at the same time."

The minimum wage rose to $15 on Long Island this year, and the worker shortage is putting additional upward pressure on wages for seasonal jobs. Splish Splash announced it will pay up to $19 per hour to new hires this summer. Given the keen competition for labor, Carpenter says most farm workers on Long Island earn above the minimum wage unless they have no work experience.

Increasing labor costs are particularly hard for farms to absorb, Carpenter says, because of the nature of the business.

"Farms are what we call 'price takers' rather than price setters," Carpenter says. "A company like Apple can say, 'The cost of materials and labor is $500, and we need profit on top of that, so we'll set the price for a phone at $800,' and they'll get it, no problem. The farmer, on the other hand, is in a commodity market, competing against growers from all over the world. The Hunts Point Produce Market will say, 'We'll pay the going rate, say $10, for a case of lettuce,' and that's the price the farmer gets, even if it cost $11 to produce it."

For workers in most industries, the 40-hour threshold for overtime was established during the Great Depression, with the passage of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) of 1938. Many workers at the time were unemployed while others worked long hours. The law sought to encourage employers to hire more people and work them fewer hours to ensure that more out-of-work people could find jobs. However, agriculture was exempt from the law, in large part due to its seasonal nature.

LINDSAY MORRIS

Even today, federal overtime laws do not apply to farm workers, who only began receiving time-and-a-half pay after 60 hours in New York in 2019, when the state passed the Farm Laborers Fair Labor Practices Act, which also gave agricultural workers the right to collectively bargain. After its passage, the workers at Pindar Vineyards in Peconic became the first farm group statewide to organize in a union, and Mineola-based Local 338 of the Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union/United Food and Commercial Workers Union (RWDSU/UFCW) was certified by the state to represent the Pindar workers.

"We are very excited that the labor board has voted to recommend that the threshold for overtime be reduced from 60 to 40 hours, because it's the right thing to do," says Jessica Garcia, assistant to the president of Local 338. "Farm workers work very hard and have incredibly grueling work in their jobs, and they deserve to get paid fairly just like any other worker."

If the new overtime policy is approved by the labor commissioner, it would be phased in using increments of four hours every other year, beginning with 56 hours in 2024 and dropping to 40 hours in 2032.

Carpenter says the policy change could have several unintended consequences, including decreased hours for those workers who want a lot of hours.

"The farmers may decide it's not feasible to pay that much to harvest lettuce or tomatoes, so they'll cap each worker at 40 hours and look to bring in more workers so they don't have to pay overtime," he says. "Many of the workers who come here for six to eight months want to work as many hours as they can so they can have a good lifestyle during the rest of the year. If they can't get extra hours here, the concern locally is that they'll go to places like Florida or Texas," which do not have overtime laws for farm workers.

Escalating labor costs may also cause some farmers to go out of business, perhaps selling their land and moving out of state, or looking to automate or switch to crops that are less labor intensive, Carpenter predicts, adding that costs may be passed on to consumers by certain categories of farms, such as vineyards or "farmers who cater to people who come out here and can afford $8 for a pint of strawberries and won't blink an eye at it."

DAN'S NORTH FORK

Get Oriented With Orient Point

GETTY IMAGES

SEASCAPE WITH ORIENT POINT LIGHTHOUSE ON THE EASTERNMOST TOWN ON LONG ISLAND'S PICTURESQUE NORTH FORK.

BY MARY MCGLONE

It has been a long winter. Too much cold, too much gray, too much time indoors. One easy way to welcome spring: Head east — as far east as you can go on the North Fork — to Orient.

Unless you are taking or meeting the New London ferry, you aren't likely to venture past Greenport. But crossing the mile-long causeway from mainland Long Island into Orient is the perfect way to refresh. The stunning vistas and proximity to nature will help you to see the North Fork's most natural beauty and will help you to get re-oriented.

Orient literally means "east," from the Latin "to rise" (where the sun rises). It also means to face east, to set right, or to proceed.

This easternmost tip of the North Fork was originally called Poquatuck by its Algonkian inhabitants. When English settlers arrived in 1640, they called it Oysterponds for the abundance of local oysters.

The area drew fishermen and farmers, and homes were built here as early as 1661. Oysterponds was renamed Orient in 1836.

Slowing Down in Orient: Orient Beach State Park

The geography and open beauty of Orient invite a slower pace. Those rushing to the ferry can miss the best part: driving slowly, windows open, smelling the salty air and passing hardly another car. But perhaps the greatest gem of Orient is Orient Beach State Park, the park that almost wasn't.

Even residents of the North Fork tend to forget about the stunning park on its eastern tip. For beach walking, shady trails, solitude and bird watching, there is no better spot on the East End.

The state park is a 363-acre natural peninsula that curves along the shoreline. It is surrounded by Gardiner's Bay on one side and Long Beach Bay on the other, with several ponds in between. The narrow road, before the land widens, provides stunning vistas of both bays. As you bike or drive along the road, the ferry dock fades away and you are likely to see osprey soaring overhead.

Originally called Long Beach, this strip of land protects Orient Village from the waters of Gardiner's Bay. Because this land was unsuitable for farming, all local landowners held it in "commonage" in the 1700s. The bays surrounding it were rich sources of fish, scallops and oysters. Fishermen leased land and put up shacks along the shore. A fish factory was located at the tip of the peninsula on leased land until it was destroyed by fire in 1880. The land of Long Beach was used to harvest salt hay for animals and building insulation. The common landowners eventually decided to turn the land over to the state, and it became a state park.

Orient Beach State Park has pristine beaches, salt marshes and a rare maritime red cedar forest. Due to its natural beauty, the park was named a National Natural Landmark in 1980, one of only 599 in the country. The short Roy Latham trail loops past red cedar, black-jack oak trees and prickly pear cactus, which bloom in late May. Unmarked trails meander 2.4 miles through the maritime red cedar forest, with water and pristine views on both sides. In the spring, winter and fall, it is rare to pass another person.

There is a 2.2-mile bike path in the park. Kayaks can be rented and a kayak map includes suggested routes and various natural and historical points of interest, including piping plover nesting areas and the fish factory ruins.

In addition to trails, beaches and a picnic area, the park hosts an Easter egg hunt and Christmas tree lighting.

Osprey and Piping Plovers

The park is a great spot for birding. The habitats of barrier beaches, salt marshes, shallow bays and maritime forests draw a wide range of birds, fish and several regionally rare plants. OBSP has 45,000 feet of frontage on Gardiner's Bay. The salt marshes are an important habitat for fish, birds and crabs, including the diamondback terrapin.

It is listed as an Audubon Important Bird Area. Federally protected piping plovers and least terns nest here (please respect nesting areas from mid-April to August), and there are 12 osprey nests in the park. Snowy owls are occasional winter visitors. OBSP has a birding checklist on its website to help visitors spot birds in the area.

Lighthouses

Orient Beach is now a United States Lighthouse Society Passport Stamp location. Four lighthouses are visible from the park: Bug Light, the Plum Island lighthouse, Orient Point lighthouse ("Coffee Pot") and the Cedar Island lighthouse.

Bug Light — so called because its original pilings resembled spider legs — was destroyed by fire and rebuilt in 1963.

So, if the walls are closing in, head east. Get oriented. Spring is rising!

DAN'S NORTH FORK

Southold's Bay to Sound Project Enters Next Phase

ARSHAMOMAQUE POND PRESERVE TRAILS WERE CLEARED WITH THE HELP OF VOLUNTEERS. PHOTO: GETTY IMAGES

BY JENNIFER CORR

It's been a long time coming. Since 2007, the Bay to Sound Integrated Trails Initiative, which works to expand the trail network in a partnership between Suffolk County, Town of Southold and Village of Greenport, has been a joint project to connect preserves and parkland from the Long Island Sound and the Southold Bay on the North Fork.

In completing the next stage of the project, John Sepenoski, of Southold's land management coordination department, says the town will have to go to bid to purchase materials and hire contractors that are needed. This process is expected to "take some time," he says.

"All that will likely start this summer is volunteer work," Sepenoski says. "The volunteers will be handling all of the trail construction and most of the trash. ... We know there are some vehicles, and such, where our highway department is going to have to get involved."

There were multiple dumping sites for cars throughout the area, Sepenoski says.

The major dump yard was cleaned up during phase two.

"There's an abandoned farm truck on one of the properties," he adds.

Phase five, which is funded by a $258,750 New York State Department of State grant, includes the construction of trails and parking lots at various parks throughout the area, including Pipes Cove Preserve and Arshamomaque County Park, habitat restoration of an abandoned house site at Pipes Cove Preserve, phragmites removal at Skipper Horton Park and Pipes Cove Preserve, as well as cleanup of old junk vehicles and boats at multiple locations.

Additional phases are currently being discussed, as well, including the possibility of creating kayak launch and landing sites.

"One of the things we'll be hiring a contract for is to help develop educational materials, offer programming and coordinate volunteers with trail days," Sepenoski says. "We know from phase two that we will end up with a bunch of random volunteers. These are people who just found out about the project and they would just go to a trail day, but they would also work outside of that. So we're anticipating that at least some of those folks would continue."

Funding in the initial stage came from the state Department of Transportation and Suffolk County in the amount of $107,000. The funding was matched by Southold, Greenport and local organizations. Since the project began in 2007, Sepenoski says, more people have been drawn to the area to enjoy the trails.

What inspired the project initially was that stakeholders wanted to see their trails linked up so that they could explore parks throughout the East End.

The Nature Conservancy in New York, which works to solve climate change and biodiversity loss, assisted the project by helping acquire a number of properties in the area adjacent to Pipes Cove Preserve and other local properties.

"While we provided the town with support letters through the phases, all the credit goes to the town and we fully supported their access to and through a number of different properties," says Kevin McDonald, the Long Island policy adviser for the Nature Conservancy in New York. "It really will present an opportunity for the public to experience the diverse shorelines and water resources of Southold and the landscape, walking from one place to another."

McDonald told Dan's Papers that he was proud of the town for being so consistent on this project. The Peconic Estuary Partnership has also been a longtime supporter of the project.

"It's really important that communities that are here full-time and communities that are here part-time really get to have a hands-on experience with the natural environment," says Dr. Joyce Novak, executive director of the Peconic Estuary Partnership. "I think it's why people enjoy the East End so much."

The Bay to Sound project, she adds, has been an ideal model for what's possible when towns and communities work together and give people an opportunity to get outside.

OBITUARY

East Hampton Native Sandy Welsh of Edwardsville Dies at 67

Sandy Welsh of Edwardsville, Illinois died on January 22, 2022, from cancer, with her family by her side. She was 67.

She was born at Southampton Hospital on August 29, 1954 and was raised in East Hampton by her parents Robert B. and Delores I. Anderson. She attended John M. Marshall Elementary School and graduated from East Hampton High School with the class of 1972 with an LPN degree. She married Wilbert "Buddy" Welsh in 1973 and moved to Illinois. She furthered her education at Lewis and Clark College where she became an R.N. She worked at Anderson Hospital, for Dr. Malench, and retired from Olin Medical.

Sandy is survived by her husband of 48 years, Buddy Welsh, her daughters Kara, and husband John Steelman, and Stacy, and husband Steve Fox of Illinois; her five grandchildren, Molly, Adam and Brayden Steelman, and Trevor and Alex Fox; and great-grandchildren Kinley and Benson; her three sisters, Patricia Doyle of Sun City, Arizona, Susan Grimes and husband Keith of Montauk, April Laine and husband Andrew of West Yarmouth, Massachusetts; and her brother Robert B. Anderson Jr. of East Hampton. She is also survived by her many nieces, nephews and cousins, and one aunt, Jean Snow of Natick, Massachusetts.

She is predeceased by her parents and her sister-in-law Karin Anderson. Sandy was a descendant of the Fithian family and she loved coming home to East Hampton for her visits.

While home, she enjoyed spending time with her siblings and their families. She loved going to Main Beach and shopping in East Hampton, Montauk and Sag Harbor. In memory of Sandy, well-wishers can go to Main Beach to see the waves and smell the ocean breeze.

There will be a celebration of life in Illinois in March, and one in East Hampton during her birthday week in August. Sandy will be sorely missed by many. She was loving, kind and sure could take some ribbing from her siblings. She loved them all and they loved her back more.

Memorial donations can be made to the American Cancer Society or the Alzheimer's Association.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

3 Affordable Kitchen Upgrades to Consider

Is remodeling your kitchen on your wish list? Afraid of how much it'll set you back?

HomeAdvisor puts the average kitchen remodel price in the $12,567 to $34,962 range. However, you can buck the trend of costly, complicated updates.

"Good design isn't entirely about how beautiful something looks," Greenport-based Little House of Kitchens says on its website. "It runs much deeper than that. The key is to understand what you need and how your family utilizes your kitchen, the heart of your home. That's the truth of good design."

Consider these three renovations, all of which will improve the look and functionality of your kitchen, without costing you thousands of dollars:

REFRESH FABRICS

Reupholstering just one chair means shelling out $150 to $600, according to HomeGuide. If that's beyond what you're willing to pay, but you're not ready to replace a beloved set of kitchen chairs, you can update their look on a budget, and in just a few minutes with stretchable seat covers. A good choice for families with kids or pets, these covers are typically machine-washable and can be swapped out as often as you like to suit your mood.

NEW GRANITE SURFACES

Countertops are the most common feature upgraded during kitchen renovations, according to a 2022 Houzz study, which found that nine in 10 remodelers performed this update. The same survey found that 35% of homeowners are splurging to make it happen. If you've looked into granite countertops, you probably learned that it can cost thousands of dollars and take months to have them custom-made and installed.

Adding this touch of luxury to your kitchen doesn't have to bust your budget, involve contractors or mean supply chain hassles. It can actually be an easy, one-weekend DIY project. Using a LuxROCK Solid Surface Granite Countertop Kit from Daich Coatings, you can transform your countertops and island surfaces at just a fraction of the price of a professional granite countertop installation. For about $300, a kit covers 40 square feet of space. This functional and decorative blend of real stone with stunning mineral highlights can be used to give a smooth appearance to countertops, tables or any other surface.

OPTIMIZE YOUR PANTRY

Pantries are often tucked away, but you can still give them an eye-catching makeover. For fresh pops of color, paint the pantry door and wallpaper the interior. Group items by height, then use customizable shelving to stretch storage real estate. You may also wish to transfer kitchen staples to uniform containers. This will offer a tidier, more appealing look, while making better use of limited space.

It's the heart of the home, but that doesn't mean you need to break the bank to create your dream kitchen. With ingenuity, you can improve its look and functionality at an affordable price point and in just a weekend.

How we're boosting the fight against hunger

Bank of America is proudly supporting our employees' health and safety and addressing one of our local community's most critical needs.

Each day, millions of Americans suffer from food insecurity, which typically spikes during the winter months. For every employee who lets us know they've received a booster shot, Bank of America is donating $100 to local hunger-relief organizations. This is a direct investment in the health of our teammates, and in the well-being of the communities where we work and live.

Through this effort, our team on Long Island recently presented Long Island Cares and Island Harvest with checks totaling $75,000. This contribution is in addition to our long-standing philanthropic support to help fight hunger and food insecurity across the country. We are proud to be able to help our community as we work together to move forward.

HIGH PROFILE

Michael Torres:

Suffolk Conservative Chair Among Nation's Most Powerful

BY TODD SHAPIRO

Michael Torres, the new chairman of the Suffolk County Conservative Party, is no stranger to political power brokering and, in fact, is not so new at all.

The party makes up 10% of all registered Conservatives across New York State. Torres took over the reins of the party after being unanimously elected in September 2020, and since, the party cemented itself as influential and relevant in local, state and federal elections alike.

Torres, 48, previously served as the chairman of the Islip Town Conservative Party. He has also served in various capacities with the county party, including sitting on the executive board of the Conservative Party for several terms and serving as the county's party secretary beneath former chairman Frank Tinari.

His leadership, which was acknowledged by a flood of support when he announced his intention to lead the county-wide party, brought with it the endorsement of powerful Conservative voice Frank Tinari, the current-Huntington Conservative Party chair and vice chair of the Conservative Party of New York State.

"I am confident that Mike Torres is going to do an excellent job in increasing the role of the Suffolk County Conservative Party," said Tinari in a statement about Torres' leadership and the future of the Conservative movement on Long Island.

Torres wasted no time getting to work. In his first term as chairman, the County Conservative Party helped re-elect Congressman Zeldin in 2020 and elect Andrew Garbarino to Congress to replace 14-term congressman Peter King. In 2021, the first local election with him at the helm of the party, the control of the Suffolk County Legislature hung in the balance.

And, if you have paid attention to local politics over the past several months, the 2021 election was nothing short of a "red wave," led by Conservative and Republican voters heading to the polls in droves to support limited government, pro-law enforcement candidates all across our region.

Many of the candidates endorsed by the Conservative and Republican Parties in Suffolk emerged victorious following Election Day. Torres' leadership was instrumental in electing Raymond Tierney as Suffolk County district attorney, electing Legislator Nick Caracappa (C-Selden) as majority leader of the Suffolk County Legislature in addition to flipping the body's control to Conservative and Republican for the first time in 16 years.

Now, there are more registered Conservative Party members in elective office in Suffolk than any time in history. These successes have now paved the way for larger goals, including the governor's mansion and the New York State Senate. And, with a hometown candidate as the presumptive Conservative and Republican nominee for the campaign, U.S. Rep. Lee Zeldin (R-Shirley), who represents the East End, Torres wasted no time in throwing his party's support to his candidacy.

The Suffolk Conservative Party was part of an early and eager coalition of county delegations to pledge their support to the East End congressman in his bid for governor. In April of 2021, Torres circulated a memo to his party faithful and the media informing them of his party's endorsement.

"In Suffolk County, we have had the privilege of being represented by Congressman Lee Zeldin, first in the State Senate and now in Congress, we've witnessed firsthand the results he's delivered for Long Islanders," Torres said in a statement. "After our meeting, our party voted overwhelmingly to lend its full support and endorsement to Lee Zeldin as we fight to save our state. There is no doubt in my mind that Lee will restore our state to one we can be proud of."

And while the largest and most visible political campaign sweeping Long Island is certainly that for the governorship, Long Islanders can not lose sight, Torres says, of the New York State Senate and the two open congressional seats on Long Island that include portions of Suffolk County being vacated by Zeldin and U.S. Rep. Tom Suozzi (D-Glen Cove), both of whom have their sights set on Albany.

Locally, Torres says the Conservative Party has endorsed Smithtown Town Clerk Vincent Puleo, a registered Conservative.

"My number one goal is to get Conservatives in office," Torres says, referencing that his party is the largest Conservative force in the State of New York. "I have and will continue to fight for our voices to be heard, our interests to be represented in all levels of government, and I will remain committed to our conservative values as we collectively work to elect candidates to town, county, state, federal offices, and the bench."

While he is new to the post of Suffolk chairman, he sees his role as expanding daily. The position of chairman of the Conservative Party is more than just a title, but a duty to continue to increase the presence, enrollment and influence of the Conservatives in Suffolk and statewide.

"Plain and simple: I see my new role as both an honor and a responsibility to our membership, the taxpayers, and the voters," he says. "The main and most fervent goal we share as Conservatives is to elect those who reflect our values as Long Islanders, and provide a check-and-balance to those in power."

Torres is a history-maker in his own regard, becoming the party's first Latin American chair in history. He currently resides in Eastport with his wife, Betsy, and their two children. Torres intends to run for reelection as chairman at this September's Conservative Party convention.

If his previous success is any indication, the Renaissance of the Suffolk Conservative Party is far from over, thanks to Chairman Michael Torres.
